

Several works by local authors at Grampa's Attic

Henry and Harriet – H.C. MacArthur & Anna Koot

The two main characters (caterpillars) meet and live a happy life until one is confronted with the untimely death of the other. This is a book that attempts to tackle the overwhelming subject of death. It gives hope for the life after and most importantly, validates the feelings of those left behind.

A Safe Haven – Joyce A. Pettigrew

In the early 1930's, of the first black families settled in Oxford County seeking safety and security in Canada. With few descendants left, this book looks at who they were and where they are today.

A Gunner's Story – Wally Naisbitt

Wally looks back on his WWII experiences as a young recruit. Sometimes comical, sometimes sobering, his story will take the reader back to what life was like from a soldier's perspective.

Alaska to Nunavut: The Great Rivers – Neil Harding & Terry Parker

Terry takes us on his adventures through the rivers of our great white north. Filled with stories and stunning photos of Canada's forgotten scenery.

The Surratt Revelation – Don Moore

Two new pictures of the Lincoln conspirators stirs a ripple worldwide. A young researcher finds herself in the midst of killings, threats and deadly intrigue between Washington and Rome. Who was really behind the Lincoln killing? The U.S. Government teeters on the brink of indecision leading to chaos as historic and cultural influences collide.
